ADVANTAGE OF HAVING A MASTERS DEGREE OVER BACHELORS

IV

Increased Job Potential

A June 2009 article in "The New York Times" noted that many people have equated a bachelor's degree in the 21st century to earning a diploma in the past. Thus, with more people graduating college and flooding the job market, it often takes a master's degree to stand out from the crowd. Jobs that you could once get with a four-year degree may even require a graduate degree.

Credibility

Thus your personal credibility depends in your sincerity, honesty, integrity and personal commitment, a Master's degree also has intangible value. The pride in telling friends and family that you have an Accredited Graduate Degree has value.

Within your profession or industry, you may also experience higher levels of credibility among peers or clients. You may even find supplemental income opportunities, such as speaking, teaching or writing, that wouldn't be available with a Bachelor's.

Quality of Life Promotability

A master's may also grant you greater staying power and promotability within an organization. A May 2010 article on the Society for Human Resource Management website noted that demand is so great for advanced education in the HR field that a master's not only increases pay, but also leads to greater sustainability within an organization.

More Earning Income

This always depends on your own capacity, however, statistically, it has proven consistent in doing so. The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics noted that a typical master's degree holder earned $1,300 per week in 2012. This marked a 22 percent higher earning potential relative to bachelor's degree holders.

Over a lifetime, your earning power can increase dramatically, especially if you invest in a master's early.

ADVANTAGE OF HAVING A DOCTORAL DEGREE

You can have the luxury of having Dr. as your title.

Your analytical skills will sky rocket, you will learn to sharpen your analytical skills, and will then be able to apply these skills to subsequent ventures.

You will be a recognized expert in your field, and you will have a fully accredited PhD Degree to prove it.

It is the highest degree that students can achieve. If you strive for greatness, and nothing short of being the best will do, a PhD, DBA, D.Ed. D.Sc. or D.Litt. will definitely fulfil your intellectual satisfaction.

Doctoral education has become of paramount significance in a world where knowledge is the new 'fuel', the ultimate economic renewable to economic growth leading to a knowledge-based economy.

PhD experience is perceived as adding value in distinguishing oneself from colleagues

The social impact for the Master and Doctoral holders could be understood in three ways:

Development of social skills (communication, presentation).

Accessing professional networks and building personal, relationships and social recognition.

In some social circles, a PhD is considered as an advantage; let's say as social status, highlighting personal development, such as maturity and independence.

A Master and Doctoral Degrees might allow you to be your own boss. You can have your own business and run your own research program.

You can write grants based on your ideas and submit them to national funding agencies.

Public benefits of attending college include increased tax revenues, greater workplace productivity, increased consumption, increased workforce flexibility, and decreased reliance on government financial support (Institute for Higher Education Policy, 1998).

You can travel to scientific meetings all over the world to present your results.

You can teach and train students at the undergraduate and graduate level and postdoctoral fellows.

You have the opportunity to travel both nationally and internationally to attend meetings, present your research, and collaborate with other scholars.

RESEARCH MODALITY

VI

Undertaking a research degree is a fantastic opportunity.

A research degree is a large commitment and you may find the following information useful in helping you decide if you want to apply to become a research student.

There are many reasons why you may want to undertake Graduate and Postgraduate study in the form of a research degree.

For example, you may require a postgraduate research degree to progress in your chosen career or you may simply want to continue study in an area which interests you.

Before you apply it is important to consider carefully the area and type of research you wish to undertake as this will form the basis of your application.

A Dissertation Research and Thesis are original, significant contribution to the scholarly literature of an academic discipline. The research must be the work of a single author. All candidates for the Master or Doctoral Degrees are required to submit research.

Inter-University Programs Department is responsible for approving the general format of the thesis, including the style to be followed in footnotes, bibliographies, tables, chapter headings, and similar matters, all these is dully specified in the:

SEVEN (7) CRITERIA FOR RESEARCH DISSERTATION.

Duration of Study

If studying full-time by Research off-campus, the recommended period of research for a Executive MBA is 1 year, for Master of Sciences or Master of Arts is 2 years and a PhD, DBA or Professional Doctorate 3 years.

In addition, students may take up to 1 additional year to complete the writing up and thesis submission process.

There are conditions attached to students based on research degree, one of which is that a student must have current background in the field of study, preferably working in the field, and graduate credits in Research Methods Course plus any other commitments agreed between the Student and School.

A graduate research degree provides a unique opportunity to follow your interest in an area of research, to focus on this for several years and make an important contribution to the development of your chosen research area.

The focus is on your capacity for innovative, independent research, critical thinking, time and project management and problem-solving. You will also need to have, or to develop, excellent skills of organization and communication of information.

International Faculty

Faculty are successful professionals, real-world experts who do what they teach and teach what they do. Our dedicated faculty consists of business owners and scholars, Senior executives, outstanding entrepreneurs, and professors from the world's leading educational institutions.

They're actively involved professionals who stay current international education.

Moreover, our faculty is dedicated to helping you "earn while you learn." In fact, faculty members regularly collaborate with students projects, often providing the expertise, and care that students need.

The reason that graduates from all areas experience a high rate of success in employment is that the generic or transferable skills required for success in a graduate research degree are the same skills that are in high demand by employers.
